Catholic Human Services Providing Help and Creating Hope AMID THE PANDEMIC

We are seeing longer lines of clients, and people who used to donate to the food pantries are now in those lines.

I've had people say, 'I have nothing for my child. I lost my job and am so happy just to come and get diapers.'

People who are homeless depend on us for food, so to be up and running, even with to-go meals, gives them hope.

Making the shift to virtual parenting classes has brought us closer together and enabled us to support our clients and their families as they share their fears and hopes.
